A: I had the same issue. Just Clear your cache and try again. It should fix your problem. the criminal conspiracy between [the defendant] and James Farrish. The jury could reasonably have inferred, from the evidence of what transpired after the making of the extortionate extension offer, that [the defendant] decided that he could not be made "good" unless Farrish would "cut his throat." Thus the jury could reasonably infer that [the defendant] induced Farrish to murder Farrish's former employer, with the object being to have Farrish get "some money." Farrish, 101 Ill.App.3d at 923, 57 Ill.Dec. at 35, 428 N.E.2d at 780. Similarly, in Hinshaw, the defendant was charged with conspiracy to murder his former employee, for the purpose of compelling the employee to pay him $3,000 pursuant to a property settlement agreement the two had entered into. The defendant and his employee had been embroiled in a number of disputes over property which the employee had acquired prior to their marriage. According to the defendant, the employee threatened to kill him and his family if he did not pay him the $3,000. The Supreme Court of Illinois found that there was sufficient evidence to warrant the defendant's conviction for conspiracy to murder. The court noted that the jury had been provided with evidence that the defendant offered to repay the $3,000, with interest, to his former employee, conditioned on the employee killing the defendant's wife and children. Following the employee's agreement to the plan, the defendant and his employee drove to a remote area of the defendant's property, where they had previously concealed a .22 caliber pistol. The defendant then asked the employee to shoot him; the employee refused. Upon returning home to the car, the defendant told his wife that the employee was "out to kill me." The defendant left the marital home, but was apprehended by law enforcement officials three days later. Hinshaw, 89 Ill.2d at 222-23, 59 Ill.Dec. at 386-87, 431 N.E.2d at 364-65. Finally, in Fonner, the defendant was charged with the murders of an ex-employee and his wife in order to obtain the couple's pension benefits. Fonner was employed with a bank; the ex-employee worked at the bank as well. Fonner and the
